In today's dynamic and competitive workplace, more organizations are investing in talent management and succession planning to identify, nurture, and prepare future leaders. Talent development is no longer a check-the-box training activity, it is a critical extension of these efforts. When strategically designed and well-executed, talent development grooms identified talent for planned roles, strengthens leadership pipelines, and drives sustainable business performance. Additionally, it boosts employee engagement, strengthens retention, and foster a culture of continuous learning.

This practical workshop supports HR and talent professionals with the framework and tools - including data, AI, and qualitative insights - to establish a clear, integrated, and measurable approach to talent development, connecting strategy with execution for long-term impact.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Align talent development with business strategies and outcomes
- Identify and assess talent needs using competency assessments and performance metrics
- Craft individual development plans to address individual strengths, gaps and career aspirations
- Design and implement integrated development actions
- Equip leaders to drive development and embed a culture of continuous learning
- Measure impact and demonstrate values of development initiatives
